

Ms Anne-Laure Lamure is an Engineer from Ecole Centrale Lyon, with a Master degree from Ecole Centrale Paris. She worked as a fellow at CERN, on adsorption and desorption of gas on carbon coating, to study the vacuum inside the next generation of magnets for High-Luminosity LHC. Later she joined RadiaBeam, a US based R&D accelerator company and built the European office.