Purpose

The purpose of the event is to review significant global developments in the radiation protection and safety of patients and health professionals, taking into account current trends and advances in medical radiation technology and procedures, and to identify future challenges and opportunities. The impact of the decade-long Bonn Call for Action on strengthening radiation protection in medicine will be assessed in line with the vision of formulating a robust strategy for the next decade.

Objectives

- To review actions and developments to strengthen radiation protection in medicine over the last decade, especially focusing on actions taken in line with the Bonn Call for Action by all relevant parties;
- To consider the overall approach to the implementation of these actions and the harmonization of activities between international organizations and other stakeholders;
- To allow stakeholders to assess and look ahead at new developments impacting on radiation protection in medicine, so that future priorities can be formulated.
